The screenshot shows the Oxford Owl website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the Oxford Owl logo and the tagline "Help your child learn". The main navigation menu includes links for Home, Reading, English, Maths, At school, Books, Kids' activities, and Blog. A large banner image features a young child with curly hair, and a pink callout box reads "Learning at home: free online learning resources". Below the banner, there is a section titled "Activities by age:" with buttons for age groups: 4-5, 5-6, 6-7, 7-8, 8-9, 9-10, and 10-11. The main content area contains the text: "Activities and fun ideas to keep your child learning while your school is closed. We have lots of advice and activities to help your child continue building the skills and knowledge they need while schools are closed. We'll be making more resources available over the coming weeks, so keep checking back." At the bottom, there is a "Just added" section with a row of resource thumbnails, including a book cover for "Nog, Nip and Red Nog" and a document titled "The Great Big Book of 1000 Questions".
